Please tell us what you think about this in the comments section below. This was posted on Reddit from a user named "nealmss" who said the following: I was informed this week that Bill Clinton and Hillary Clinton are officially separated, effective immediately. The marriage is over after 49 years. Bill and Hillary have spent all of this year apart; Hillary has spent more time with her daughter, Chelsea, than Bill. I was informed that Bill Clinton will spend most of next year in Louisiana. While I am sure this is a very difficult time for them both, they have to realize that their joint political career is over as well. It is always sad when a marriage ends, and I hope they will both make the best of it. I also hope they will learn from their mistakes and take the time to heal their wounds. What do you think about the divorce? About The Author Danny Glover is the founder and editor-in-chief of Intellihub News. The network administrator could then request a print job from the networked printer by specifying its IP address. It is now commonplace for users to take the print job to a print shop where the print job is printed. Under the traditional approach, the network administrator must also be present at the print shop to inquire about the status of the print job. Alternatively, the network administrator may make multiple calls to the print shop to monitor the status of the print job. These traditional approaches can be burdensome to the network administrator and cause the network administrator to miss important information such as when the print job is completed.Q
